

HEART GALLERIES OF TEXAS

Request for Applications: DFPS Regions 9, 10 & 11

Strengthening positive permanency across Texas through the development and expansion of Heart Gallery programs.

In partnership with the Center for Societal Impact at the University of Texas Austin, the Texas Center for Child and Family Studies (the Center) seeks applications to develop and establish or expand and operate regional Heart Gallery programs. Selected organizations will receive 2-year grants through the Heart Galleries of Texas project.

The Heart Galleries of Texas project is focused on strengthening Heart Gallery programs as tools for positive permanency in communities by developing strong and thriving local Heart Galleries that serve communities across Texas to increase the number of children and youth in positive and permanent placements. The project received funding in the 88th Legislative Session to expand the Heart Gallery programs to all 11 DFPS regions in Texas. This allows the project to expand adoption efforts statewide to generate better outcomes for the hardest cases, finding homes for teens, sibling groups, and children with special healthcare needs.

Program Overview

The Heart Gallery was born with the purpose of utilizing the power of photography to capture the individuality and dignity of children experiencing foster care, to advocate for their permanency, raise public awareness about their needs, and obtain support to help meet those needs. In Texas, Heart Gallery programs assist caseworkers in what many consider to be their hardest cases when parental rights have been terminated.

Grant awards will be announced via grant acceptance letters and project funding will be paid in two installments upon execution of the grant acceptance letter. All requirements within the grant acceptance letter must be met by the end date of the contract, including spending down funds and carrying out activities according to the approved application and established timelines, or organizations could risk having to pay back funds received.

Should an award organization need to make changes to the grant project described and budgeted in an application post approval by the Center, an amendment for approval must be submitted. Amendments must also comply with all applicable grant requirements and are subject to negotiation for approval.

Application Evaluation

The Center will use a systematic scoring process by a panel of internal and external reviewers to select applicants for awards. The Center will score the applications using a rubric based on the project plan components noted above.
